FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PLANET LOOP RELEASES TRIPLE-TRIO STUDIO ALBUM "CUBED"

On April 1, 2011, the electro-jazz-funk project PLANET LOOP released its newest studio album entitled CUBED. The work is a unique "triple trio" album, as each day for three days the core duo invited a different "rotating trio" member into the studio with them. The result is ten all-original tracks filled with textural magic and sonic variety.

Bay Area-based PLANET LOOP began in 2006 with just two musicians, Carrie Jahde and Michael Schaller, armed with a drum set, an electric bass, and a multitude of loops, pedals and electronic samples. Combining the improvisation of jazz with electronica, live loops, and the dance rhythms of world, trance, and funk music, they drew from a huge variety of genres. "Part of the hypnotic nature of our songs comes from the loops we create and the influences we draw from," notes bassist Michael Schaller. "But, we are a live band with jazz roots, committed to creating all of our sounds in the moment, on the stage." Having collectively performed on stages spanning all corners of the United States, Italy, and Eastern Europe for close to a decade, the duo took spontaneous musical communication to an entirely new level.

The 2011 release of CUBED documents the evolution of the PLANET LOOP TRIO, where a different performer will collaborate with them at each of their live shows. "CUBED is a chance for us to feature our rotating trio experiment which we have so greatly enjoyed at our live shows," explains drummer Carrie Jahde. "With some of the top Bay Area musicians featured, each new voice brings a very unique meaning to the songs."
